Miami (Oh) came up short against the Kent State Golden Flashes last week 7, falling 48-38. The Bulls' defeat shouldn't obscure the performances of RB Dylan McDuffie, who punched in one rushing touchdown, and RB Kevin Marks Jr., who punched in two rushing touchdowns. Marks Jr.'s performance made up for a slower game against the Western Michigan Broncos two weeks ago.

Watching the match from outside the USA can be tricky as there is no official TV network that is broadcasting the Akron vs Miami (Oh) State live stream online. The fight will only be available as Pay-PerView (PPV). But if you are living outside the USA, then you can always use a VPN service.

I want to point out something that I linked above in the intro that hasn't been available to us in the past: team pages from CollegeFootballData.com. They introduced these last week 7 basically right after I finished the First Look, and they do a good job of highlighting the same information that I was trying to pull, which is, once again, not opponent adjusted.

One thing that concerns me from looking at the teams stacked up against each other is WVU's defensive stuff rate, which is quite good at 29%. That means their defense stops the opponent offense at or behind the line of scrimmage on 29% of their running plays. That's the highest rate we will have faced thus far. This matches up with Miami (Oh) State's best offensive trait, a low stuff rate, and will likely decide the outcome of the game unless Miami (Oh) State is willing to throw more often on first downs, something we did not see against Akron State. Hopefully we will, because the big weakness for WVU's defense appears to be explosive passing plays. That means if we can protect Bohanon and are willing to let him take a few shots, a few should connect for big plays. Platform that gives you loads of decisions to make.

Meanwhile, it was a hard-fought matchup, but Akron had to settle for a 30-27 loss against the Central Michigan Chippewas last week 7. The loss was just more heartbreak for the Bobcats, who have now lost three close ones in a row against CMU. No one had a standout game offensively for Akron, but they got scores from RB De'Montre Tuggle and RB Sieh Bangura.

The losses put the Bulls at 2-4 and Akron at 1-5. A couple defensive stats to keep in the back of your head while watching: Miami (Oh) is stumbling into the matchup with the 222nd most rushing touchdowns allowed in the nation, having given up 12 on the season. The Bobcats have experienced some rushing struggles of their own as they are 237th worst in the nation in rushing touchdowns allowed, with 15 on the season. It's possible one of these Achilles' heels will wind up tripping the losing team up.

If we're getting safeties that are in the box as much as we were on Saturday, we have to be more effective at cracking them. Then we're also going to have to complete balls down the field to stretch defenses where they don't have seven, nine, 10-man fronts."The Bears (4-1, 2-1 Big 12) will get some resistance from the Miami (Oh) State, who are 12th in the NCAA.
College Football Odds Picks for Week 7.

Like Week 7, Week 7 of the season represents another solid opportunity for college football investors, and it happens to have plenty of big games with a lot of storylines surrounding them.

Along with Iowa vs. Penn State, which is one of the most important games of the weekend from a futures and College Football Playoff perspective, we'll see plenty of in-conference rivalries.

That action starts with the Red River Showdown, where Miami (Oh) State will attempt to take Spencer Rattler out of the game in favor of backup Caleb Williams.

At 3:30 p.m. ET, Akron will look to avoid a letdown after dominating a ranked Akron when it takes on an Miami (Oh) State squad that seems to be finding its stride behind quarterback Bo Nix, who was benched just two weeks ago.

Finally, Miami (Oh) State will hope interim head coach Donte Williams can lead it to victory in what should be a tight game against Akron, which has already seen a circus at the quarterback position similar to the Trojans.

Check out all three games I'm betting below, and don't forget to follow me in the Action Network app ahead of game day.
